CIVIL ACTION NO. 15-6646

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Smith, J.

May 12, 2016

On December 11, 2015, the clerk of court docketed a purported petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by the pro se petitioner, Ricky Tejada (“Tejada”). Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, Doc. No. 1. In this handwritten document, Tejada appears to be seeking habeas relief from a November 3, 2015 decision by the Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania in the matter of Ricky Tejada v. Jon D. Fisher, Superintendent, No. 14 C.D. 2015, a copy of which he attached to the petition. Id. at 1-9.¹ He identifies the sole respondent as Jon D. Fisher (“Fisher”), superintendent. Id. at 1.

With respect to this state court action, the Commonwealth Court’s decision indicates that

[o]n July 28, 2014, Tejada, a prisoner at S.C.I. Smithfield, filed a pre-complaint request for written interrogatories, requests for admissions, an application to proceed in forma pauperis, and a civil action complaint. In his complaint, Tejada averred that on February 3, 2014, he slipped and fell on snow and/or ice in the exercise yard at S.C.I. Smithfield, sustaining muscle spasms and back pain. Tejada alleged that Superintendent Fisher had a duty to ensure that the exercise yard was clear of snow and/or ice and breached this duty by failing to physically remove or use salt to melt the snow and/or ice. Tejada asserted counts for negligence, “dangerous condition to Commonwealth real estate,” and “personal injury.” Tejada also contended that his claims fell within the real estate exception to sovereign immunity at section 8522(b)(4) of the Judicial Code, 42 Pa.C.S. § 8522(b)(4).

Tejada v. Fisher, No. 14 C.D. 2015, 2015 WL 6788876, at *1 (Nov. 3, 2015) (footnote and internal references to the state court record omitted).²

According to the Commonwealth Court, Fisher filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings, which the trial court granted on October 28, 2014. Id. Tejada filed an appeal from the trial court judgment to the Commonwealth Court, and the Commonwealth Court affirmed the trial court via the aforementioned unreported decision on November 3, 2015. Id.

In the handwritten petition, Tejada references numerous errors allegedly committed by the Commonwealth Court and the trial court. Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus at 2-4. He also generally claims that the underlying state court decisions violated the “Constitution or laws or treaties of the United States.” Id. at 2.

After reviewing the handwritten petition, the court entered an order on December 28, 2015, which, inter alia, required Tejada to (1) complete a form petition under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 and return it to the clerk of court, and (2) complete an application to proceed in forma pauperis and return it to the clerk of court or pay the $5.00 filing fee. Order, Doc. No. 2. Tejada had to complete these tasks within 30 days of the date of the order. Id.

Tejada filed a motion seeking an extension of time to comply with the December 28, 2015 order that the clerk of court docketed on February 5, 2016. Doc. No. 3. On that same date, the court entered an order extending the time for compliance until March 4, 2016. Doc. No. 4.

On March 4, 2016, the clerk of court docketed Tejada’s second motion for an extension of time and his notice that he purportedly paid the filing fee. Doc. No. 5. In the motion, Tejada asserted that he needed additional time to comply with the December 28, 2015 order because his address had changed. Motion for Extension of Time and Notice of Filing Fee Being Paid at 1, 2. Tejada also stated that he sent “a U.S. Postal money order in the amount of $20 . . . to this court for the filing fee required by this court” on January 12, 2016. Id. at 2. According to Tejada, the clerk of court returned the money order to him, and he sent it back to the court on February 8, 2016. Id. There is no record of the clerk of court receiving the resent money order.

The court granted Tejada’s second motion seeking additional time via an order entered on March 8, 2016. Doc. No. 6. On April 4, 2016, the clerk of court docketed two documents submitted by Tejada. Doc. Nos. 8, 9. The first document was a completed application to proceed in forma pauperis. Doc. No. 8. The second document was titled, “Motion to Clarify the Pleadings and Motion to Show Cause the Filing Fee Money Wasn’t Remitted Back to the Court.” Doc. No. 9. With this second document, Tejada attached a completed section 2254 habeas petition for this case and completed habeas petitions for four other pending cases that he has in this court, Civil Action Nos. 15-6440, 15-6645, 15-6647, and 15-6648. Id. Through the submission of these documents, the petitioner has complied with the court’s December 28, 2015 order. For ease of reference, the court had the clerk of court docket the amended petition as a separate document by order dated May 6, 2016. Doc. Nos. 11, 12.

With regard to the motion to clarify and motion to show cause, it appears that Tejada asserts that he submitted a partial filing fee to the clerk of court with a designation of the cases to which the clerk should apply the amount submitted. Motion to Clarify the Pleadings and Motion to Show Cause the Filing Fee Money Wasn’t Remitted Back to the Court at 1-2.³ He seeks an order requiring the clerk's office to show cause that he did not resubmit it within a week of it being returned to him. Id. at 2.

The undersigned has confirmed with the clerk of court's office that it did not re-receive any funds from Tejada that could be applied to the filing fee owed in this action or any of his other currently-pending cases. Thus, there is no basis for the court to require the clerk's office to show cause (even if the court could enter such an order), and the court will deny the motion seeking a show cause order.

Although Tejada failed to remit the filing fee, this does not preclude the court from reviewing the instant habeas corpus petition because he filed a completed application to proceed in forma pauperis. Regarding motions to proceed in forma pauperis, the court notes that any court of the United States may authorize the commencement, prosecution or defense of any suit, action or proceeding, civil or criminal, or appeal therein, without prepayment of fees or security therefor, by a person who submits an affidavit that includes a statement of all assets such prisoner possesses that the person is unable to pay such fees or give security therefor.

28 U.S.C. § 1915(a).

As indicated by the language in section 1915(a), to proceed in forma pauperis Tejada must establish that he is unable to pay the costs of suit. See Walker v. People Express Airlines, Inc., 886 F.2d 598, 601 (3d Cir. 1989) ("Section 1915 provides that, in order for a court to grant in forma pauperis status, the litigant seeking such status must establish that he is unable to pay the costs of his suit."). Here, after reviewing the application to proceed in forma pauperis, it appears that Tejada is unable to pay the costs of suit. Therefore, the court grants Tejada leave to proceed in forma pauperis.

Concerning the substance of the amended habeas corpus petition itself, Tejada indicates, inter alia, that (1) the Court of Common Pleas of Huntingdon County entered the judgment of conviction that he is challenging, and (2) the applicable “criminal” docket number for the state court case is “14-959.” Petition Under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 for Writ of Habeas Corpus by a Person in State Custody (“Section 2254 Pet.”) at 4, Doc. No. 12.⁴ Despite providing this information that would seem to pertain to a criminal case, Tejada also indicates that he does not know the date of his judgment of conviction and his date of sentencing is “N/A.” Id. He references that he filed an appeal with the Commonwealth Court that was docketed at No. 14 C.D. 2015 and the Commonwealth Court denied and dismissed his appeal on an unknown date. Id. at 5.

In the section of the petition where Tejada must “state every ground on which [he] claim[s] that [he] is being held in violation of the Constitution,” Tejada states that his first ground is: “[D]id your applicant timely file notice of appeal[?]” Id. at 8. He identifies his supporting facts as “‘prisoner mail box rule’ deems all filings timely when deposited with prison authorities and verified by prison cash slip for postage.” Id. For his second ground, Tejada claims that “the verification by defendant did not conform to rule of court at Pa.R.C.P. No. 76, 1024(d).” Id. at 10. His facts supporting this claim are “defendants [sic] pleading specifically failed to comport with the mandates of Pa.R.C.P. No. 76 making it defective in that it wasn’t declared under 18 Pa.C.S.A. [§] 4904.” Id. Overall, Tejada requests that the court “vacate the judgement [sic] as void and remand back to court for proceedings consistent with the Pa. Rules of Court.” Id. at 18.

After reviewing the entirety of the completed amended habeas petition combined with the initial handwritten petition and its attachment, Tejada has submitted a frivolous habeas corpus petition and has otherwise failed to state a claim warranting habeas corpus relief because he is improperly attempting to challenge the decisions of a state trial court and a state intermediate appellate court in an underlying civil action that has nothing to do with the legality of his confinement. Even though Tejada references a “judgment of conviction” in the amended habeas corpus petition, the totality of the petition demonstrates that he is seeking to challenge the state trial court’s decision to enter judgment on the pleadings in favor of Fisher and the state intermediate appellate court’s decision affirming the trial court’s order granting judgment on the pleadings.

Although the amended habeas petition does not contain the detail from the handwritten petition or a copy of the attachment, it still demonstrates that Tejada is seeking to use the writ of habeas corpus to challenge state court decisions in what appears to be a personal injury or premises liability case. In this regard, the amended petition contains the same docket number for the Commonwealth Court decision attached to the original handwritten petition.

Neither 28 U.S.C. § 2241 nor 28 U.S.C. § 2254 provide avenues for Tejada to get the relief he appears to seek in this case, namely vacating the civil judgment of the state court and having the matter remanded there for further proceedings. With regard to section 2254, it states that “a district court shall entertain an application for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of a person in custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court only on the ground that he is in custody in violation of the Constitution or laws or treaties of the United States.” 28 U.S.C. § 2254(a) (emphasis added). Although Tejada appears to be “in custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court,” he does not assert that he is “in custody in violation of the Constitution or laws or treaties of the United States.”⁵ Id. Instead, he is asserting that the state courts erred in their resolution of his civil litigation. Further, he is not arguing that the underlying state matter has anything to do with the fact that he is currently in custody.

Section 2241 also does not provide a basis for relief. “The unique purpose of habeas corpus [is] to release the applicant for the writ from unlawful confinement.” Allen v. McCurry, 449 U.S. 90, 98 n.12 (1980) (citation omitted). Also, “the essence of habeas corpus is an attack by a person in custody upon the legality of that custody, and that the traditional function of the writ is to secure release from illegal custody.” Preiser v. Rodriguez, 411 U.S. 475, 484 (1973). Again, Tejada is not using the instant petition to challenge the legality of his custody or to seek his release from custody. Instead, he is challenging the propriety of the trial court granting judgment on the pleadings in favor of Fisher and the appellate court’s affirmance of this decision. He may not use the writ of habeas corpus to obtain this relief.

Because Tejada is attempting to challenge the legality of the aforementioned state court decisions, he has not set forth a claim upon which the court can grant habeas corpus relief and this petition is frivolous. See 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B)(i), (ii) (“[T]he court shall dismiss the case at any time if the court determines that--(B) the action or appeal--(i) is frivolous or malicious; [or] (ii) fails to state a claim on which relief may be granted[.]”); see also see Russell v. Martinez, 325 F. App’x 45 (3d Cir. 2009) (dismissing an appeal filed by a habeas litigant on the basis of section 1915(e)(2)(B)(ii)). Accordingly, the court will dismiss the instant amended petition.⁶

⁶ In addition, the court will not issue a certificate of appealability under 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c) because Tejada has failed to make a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right or demonstrate that a reasonable jurist would debate the correctness of this ruling. 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2); Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000).

The court will issue a separate order formally disposing of the amended petition.
